Suffering As A Path Of Transformation

A Contemplative Journey if Three Questions: Why, What, Who Across Three Periods of Time: Past, Present, and Future

“All great spirituality is about what we do with our pain.

If we don't transform our pain we will transmit it to those around us.”

~ Richard Rohr

Suffering is most often viewed as a burden to be carried. Is it possible that suffering could be a gateway to living a more contemplative life? We invite you to join us as Rick Klein leads us in an exploration of the transformative potential of suffering. Rick will weave together insights from western and eastern spiritual traditions into a tapestry of compassion, forgiveness, and hope that can serve as a foundation for the contemplative journey.

“[May we] allow ourselves to be loved unconditionally and so be inspired to meet the needs of everyone in the human family past, present and to come.”~ Thomas Keating

Rick gives retreats and workshops on contemplative spirituality throughout Colorado. He is certified instructor of Centering Prayer and has presented workshops on the work of Teilhard de Chardin, science & spirituality, and mysticism at the Center for Contemplative Living. He was a past facilitator and teacher in the Benedictine Spiritual Formation Program offered by the Benet Hill Monastery. He lives with his wife Lori in Fort Collins, CO.

Since we are holding this event at our Center, space is limited to 150 participants. We encourage you to register early and to plan on carpooling. We recommend registering online with your credit card at www.contemplativeoutreach-co.org or mail your registration form and check to Contemplative Outreach of Colorado, 3650 Yates St., Denver, CO 80212.
